

Shining a light on the weekly Bible Lessons published in the Christian Science Quarterly®

Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?

June 13–19, 2022

from the Responsive Reading

I Chronicles 29:11, 12

Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all. Both riches and honour come of thee, and thou reignest over all; and in thine hand is power and might; and in thine hand it is to make great, and to give strength unto all.

At the outset of this chapter, David pledges his personal wealth and resources for Solomon's building of the Temple—a task he has long desired to undertake himself—and asks the congregation to contribute as well, which they do enthusiastically (see vv. 2–9). The Chronicler's doxology, a Bible authority suggests, "expresses an uncompromising monotheism in which all things come from an omnipotent God."

Verse 11 foreshadows the concluding lines of the Lord's Prayer: "For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever" (Matthew 6:13).

Isaiah 40:12

Who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand, and meted out heaven with the span, and comprehended the dust of the earth in a measure, and weighed the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance?

God's sovereignty contrasts strikingly with minuscule human capacity. Even the most impressive elements of nature are as items measured in inches or centimeters, ounces or grams. (Similar contrasts occur in Job 38:4, 5, citation 2, and Proverbs 30:4.)

from Section 1

1 | Hebrews 11:3

Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear.

Translation

By faith we understand that the worlds [during the successive ages] were framed (fashioned, put in order, and equipped for their intended purpose) by the word of God, so that what we see was not made out of things which are visible.

—Amplified® Bible Classic

People in many ancient cultures thought the world had been formed from preexisting matter. Jewish doctrine, however, taught that God created the world by His Word. A psalmist writes, for instance, “He spake, and it was done” (Psalms 33:9).

Discussing this assertion from Hebrews, one source observes: “Not only is the eternity of matter denied, but from the beginning a warning has been given against a materialistic philosophy. The first page of Scripture is designed to teach the constant presence and work of the Creator.” Faith enables us to see beyond matter to the invisible divine creation.

2 | Job 38:1, 2, 4, 5, 25, 31, 32

Then the Lord answered Job out of the whirlwind, and said, Who is this that darkeneth counsel by words without knowledge? . . . Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the earth? declare, if thou hast understanding. Who hath laid the measures thereof, if thou knowest? or who hath stretched the line upon it? . . . Who hath divided a watercourse for the overflowing of waters, or a way for the lightning of thunder; . . . Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades, or loose the bands of Orion? Canst thou bring forth Mazzaroth in his season? or canst thou guide Arcturus with his sons?

Translation

Then out of the storm the LORD spoke to Job.

Who are you to question my wisdom with your ignorant, empty words? . . .

Were you there when I made the world?

*If you know so much, tell me about it.
Who decided how large it would be?
Who stretched the measuring line over it? . . .
Who dug a channel for the pouring rain and cleared the way for the thunderstorm? . . .
Can you tie the Pleiades together or loosen the bonds that hold Orion?
Can you guide the stars season by season and direct the Big and the Little Dipper?*

—Good News Translation

For most of Job’s story, he grapples with doubts about God’s nature and intent toward His creation. Now God answers Job, not with final statements, but in four chapters of questions describing His supreme power and wisdom (see chaps. 38–41).

A scholar explains, “God’s numerous questions to Job are designed to challenge Job’s understanding and to increase knowledge, not shut it down.” Another notes, “God does not humiliate or condemn him.” God’s responses, he adds, “succeed in bringing Job to complete faith in God’s wisdom and goodness.”

Job is humbled, saying, “I know that thou canst do every thing, and that no thought can be withholden from thee” (42:2, citation 3). His willingness to worship God without reservation is rewarded by the restoration of abundance and peace in his life (see 42:10–17).

3 | Job 42:1, 2, 5

Then Job answered the Lord, and said, I know that thou canst do every thing, and that no thought can be withholden from thee. . . . I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear: but now mine eye seeth thee.

Translation

*Then Job answered the LORD.
I know, LORD, that you are all-powerful;
that you can do everything you want. . . .
In the past I knew only what others had told me,
but now I have seen you with my own eyes.*

—Good News Translation

4 | Psalms 63:1, 2

O God, thou art my God; early will I seek thee: my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is; to see thy power and thy glory, so as I have seen thee in the sanctuary.

Translation

You are my God. I worship you.

*In my heart, I long for you,
as I would long for a stream
in a scorching desert.*

*I have seen your power and your glory
in the place of worship.*

—Contemporary English Version

from Section 2

6 | Psalms 62:11

God hath spoken once; twice have I heard this; that power belongeth unto God.

Like other declarations in wisdom literature, this statement uses the convention of mentioning a number and then raising it by one—a means of expressing certainty or emphasis. Examples of these “numerical proverbs” are also found in Proverbs 30:15–31 and Amos 2:4, as well as in these words from Job: “He shall deliver thee in six troubles: yea, in seven there shall no evil touch thee” (5:19).

9 | II Kings 4:1–7

Now there cried a certain woman of the wives of the sons of the prophets unto Elisha, saying, Thy servant my husband is dead; and thou knowest that thy servant did fear the Lord: and the creditor is come to take unto him my two sons to be bondmen. And Elisha said unto her, What shall I do for thee? tell me, what hast thou in the house? And she said, Thine handmaid hath not any thing in the house, save a pot of oil. Then he said, Go, borrow thee vessels abroad of all thy neighbours, even empty vessels; borrow not a few. And when thou art come in, thou shalt shut the door upon thee and upon thy sons, and shalt pour out into all those vessels, and thou shalt set aside that which is full. So she went from him, and shut the door upon her and upon her sons, who brought the vessels to her; and she poured out. And it came to pass, when the vessels were full, that she said unto her son, Bring me yet a vessel. And he said unto her, There is not a vessel more. And the oil stayed. Then she came and told the man of God. And he said, Go, sell the oil, and pay thy debt, and live thou and thy children of the rest.

Considered a major biblical prophet, Elisha was active in the northern kingdom of Israel circa 850–800 BC. Although he was commissioned by Elijah rather than receiving a direct divine call—and though his ministry was built on the foundational work of Elijah—his lifework turned out to be fuller and of much longer duration than that of his predecessor.

Elisha is sometimes viewed as milder and more social than his fierce and solitary mentor. Yet he demonstrated stern resolve during the reigns of several kings, counseling and admonishing them in the name of God. Of Elisha’s many miracles, two resembled those of Elijah: this multiplication of oil for a widow and the raising of a child from death. Others included purifying noxious waters and deadly food, healing Naaman of leprosy, floating an ax-head, and saving Israel from the Syrian army (see II Kings 2:19–6:23).

10 | Isaiah 61:11

As the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations.

Translation

“The soil makes the young plant come up.

A garden causes seeds to grow.

In the same way, the LORD and King will make godliness grow.

And all the nations will praise him.”

—New International Reader’s Version

from Section 3

11 | Psalms 93:3, 4

The floods have lifted up, O Lord, the floods have lifted up their voice; the floods lift up their waves. The Lord on high is mightier than the noise of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea.

Translation

The floods have risen up, O LORD.

The floods have roared like thunder;

the floods have lifted their pounding waves.

But mightier than the violent raging of the seas, mightier than the breakers on the shore—

the LORD above is mightier than these!

—New Living Translation

God’s dominion over the chaos of surging waters is celebrated throughout Scripture, beginning with the first flood account and the parting of the Red Sea (see Genesis, chap. 7; Exodus 14:15–30). Elsewhere, the Psalmist affirms that God “stilleth the noise of the seas, the noise of their waves” and “sitteth upon the flood” (Psalms 65:7; 29:10). One commentator reflects, “In the faith of the psalmists, . . . God is enthroned triumphantly over the powers that threaten to plunge human history into meaningless disorder and chaos.”

12 | Zechariah 4:6

Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts.

Translation

. . . “You will not succeed by your own strength or by your own power, but by my Spirit,” says the LORD All-Powerful.

—New Century Version

14 | Luke 8:22–25

Now it came to pass on a certain day, that he went into a ship with his disciples: and he said unto them, Let us go over unto the other side of the lake. And they launched forth. But as they sailed he fell asleep: and there came down a storm of wind on the lake; and they were filled with water, and were in jeopardy. And they came to him, and awoke him, saying, Master, master, we perish. Then he arose, and rebuked the wind and the raging of the water: and they ceased, and there was a calm. And he said unto them, Where is your faith? And they being afraid wondered, saying one to another, What manner of man is this! for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him.

In this story, Christ Jesus and his disciples are crossing the Sea of Galilee. Located 690 feet (210 meters) below sea level, this body of water is ringed by hills. The collision of cold mountain air with warmer air in the sea basin generates hurricane-force winds to this day.

Remains of an ancient fishing boat were discovered at the sea in 1986. Archaeologists date it to the first century ad, making it likely typical of the disciples’ boat. It measures 27 feet long by 7.5 feet wide (8.2 by 2.3 meters) and would have had oars, a mast, and a sail. Clearly this small craft wouldn’t have afforded much shelter to Jesus, yet his rest is undisturbed.

The Savior’s authoritative quieting of the stormy sea is immediately followed by his equally decisive calming of the demon-possessed Gadarene (see vv. 26–35).

from Section 4

15 | II Corinthians 4:6

God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

Translation

The Scriptures say, “God commanded light to shine in the dark.” Now God is shining in our hearts to let you know that his glory is seen in Jesus Christ.

—Contemporary English Version

16 | Luke 5:12–17

It came to pass, when he was in a certain city, behold a man full of leprosy: who seeing Jesus fell on his face, and besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And he put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will: be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him. And he charged him to tell no man: but go, and shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing, according as Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them. But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him: and great multitudes came together to hear, and to be healed by him of their infirmities. And he withdrew himself into the wilderness, and prayed. And it came to pass on a certain day, as he was teaching, that there were Pharisees and doctors of the law sitting by, which were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judæa, and Jerusalem: and the power of the Lord was present to heal them.

Jesus’ healings impel multitudes to seek him out—and both his works and the crowds draw the attention of Jewish religious leaders. Here the Pharisees and scribes (identified as teachers or doctors of the law) are watchful, not combative. And the Gospel writer appears to include them as possible recipients of healing.

from Section 5

17 | Psalms 119:89, 111

For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven. . . . Thy testimonies have I taken as an heritage for ever: for they are the rejoicing of my heart.

Psalm 119 is a meticulously constructed ode to God’s law. In 22 stanzas—each corresponding to a letter of the Hebrew alphabet and made up of exactly eight verses—the author celebrates not mere legal code or even Mosaic law but the Word of God.

“The sheer existence of this extraordinary meditation on God’s Torah,” remarks a Bible expert, “is a telling reminder that Israel’s Law was no heavy burden laid upon a people, constricting its life and energies. Rather, God’s Law is presented as the best of gifts of a good God.”

18 | Philippians 3:13–15

Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Let us therefore, as many as be perfect, be thus minded: and if in any thing ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you.

Translation

Beloved, I do not consider that I have made it my own; but this one thing I do: forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, I press on towards the goal for the prize of the heavenly call of God in Christ Jesus. Let those of us then who are mature be of the same mind; and if you think differently about anything, this too God will reveal to you.

—New Revised Standard Version

Paul freely admits that he has not reached the level of understanding he seeks. But just as a runner keeps his eyes on the goal before him, the apostle’s focus is on the prize of God’s call in Christ. In this “race,” the goal is purely spiritual—and it far outweighs outward evidences of piety (see vv. 4–7).

from Section 6

19 | Romans 15:13

Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghost.

Translation

May God, the source of hope, fill you with joy and peace through your faith in him. Then you will overflow with hope by the power of the Holy Spirit.

—GOD’S WORD Translation

To the Israelites, hope was not gained through human effort. It was a gift from God, an assurance of goodness flowing from His loving nature. One source points out that “because hope is God-grounded, God-sustained, and God-directed, hope is a reality within which men may dwell.”

Read a related article, “Prayer can solve world problems” by Marilyn Jane Rimmington, at jsh.christianscience.com/prayer-can-solve-world-problems.

Resources quoted in this issue

RR: Alter, Robert. The Hebrew Bible, Vol. 3, The Writings: A Translation with Commentary. New York and London. W.W. Norton & Company, 2019.

Cit. 1: Ellicott, Charles John, ed. A Bible Commentary for English Readers by Various Writers. London: Cassell, 1897–1905. Also available at studydrive.org/commentaries.

Cit. 2: Green, Joel B., et al., eds. The CEB Study Bible. Nashville; Barker, Kenneth L., John H. Stek, Walter W. Wessel, and Ronald F. Youngblood. NIV Study Bible. Grand Rapids, MI: Zondervan Pub. House, 2002.

Cit. 11: Anderson, Bernhard W. Out of the Depths: The Psalms Speak for Us Today. Philadelphia: Westminster Press, 1983.

Cit. 17: Harrelson, Walter J., ed. The New Interpreter's Study Bible. Nashville: Abingdon, 2003.

Cit. 19: Buttrick, George Arthur, et al., eds. The Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible: An Illustrated Encyclopedia. Vol. 2. Nashville: Abingdon, 1962.

COPYRIGHT

Scriptural quotations marked Amplified® Bible Classic are taken from the Amplified® Bible Classic, copyright © 1954, 1958, 1962, 1964, 1965, 1987 by The Lockman Foundation. Used by permission. www.Lockman.org.

Scriptural quotations marked Good News Translation are taken from the Good News Translation in Today's English Version—Second Edition, copyright © 1992 by American Bible Society. Used by permission.

Scriptural quotations marked Contemporary English Version are taken from the Contemporary English Version, copyright © 1991, 1992, 1995 by American Bible Society. Used by permission.

Scriptural quotations marked New International Reader's Version are taken from the Holy Bible, New International Reader's Version™, NIRV™. Copyright © 1995, 1996, 1998, 2014 by Biblica, Inc. Used with permission. All rights reserved worldwide.

Scriptural quotations marked New Living Translation are taken from the Holy Bible, New Living Translation, copyright © 1996, 2004, 2015 by Tyndale House Foundation. Used by permission of Tyndale House Publishers, Inc., Carol Stream, Illinois 60188. All rights reserved.

Scriptural quotations marked New Century Version are taken from the New Century Version®. Copyright © 2005 by Thomas Nelson. Used by permission. All rights reserved.

Scriptural quotations marked New Revised Standard Version Bible are taken from the New Revised Standard Version Bible, copyright © 1989 National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States of America. Used by permission. All rights reserved.

Scriptural quotations marked GOD'S WORD Translation are taken from GOD'S WORD®. © 1995, 2003, 2013, 2014, 2019, 2020 by God's Word to the Nations Mission Society. Used by permission.

© 2022 The Christian Science Publishing Society. The design of the Cross and Crown is a trademark owned by the Christian Science Board of Directors and is used by permission. Bible Lens and Christian Science Quarterly are trademarks owned by The Christian Science Publishing Society. Unless otherwise indicated, all scriptural quotations are taken from the King James Version of the Holy Bible.