

Shining a light on the weekly Bible Lessons published in the Christian Science Quarterly®

Substance

September 5–11, 2022

from the Golden Text

Hebrews 11:1

Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.

To the author of Hebrews, a scholar suggests, “[Faith] is not the hope which looks forward with wistful longing; it is the hope which looks forward with utter conviction.” One translation has, “Now faith means that we have full confidence in the things we hope for, it means being certain of things we cannot see.”

from Section 1

1 | Proverbs 8:1, 4, 21, 34, 35

Doth not wisdom cry? and understanding put forth her voice? . . . Unto you, O men, I call; and my voice is to the sons of man. . . . that I may cause those that love me to inherit substance; and I will fill their treasures. . . . Blessed is the man that heareth me, watching daily at my gates, waiting at the posts of my doors. For whoso findeth me findeth life, and shall obtain favour of the Lord.

Translation

*With great understanding,
Wisdom is calling out
“I am calling out to each one of you! . . .
and I give great riches
to everyone who loves me. . . .
Come to my home each day
and listen to me.
You will find happiness.
By finding me, you find life,
and the LORD will be pleased with you.”*

—Contemporary English Version

In ancient times, city gates were congregating spots where business was conducted, disputes settled, and journeys begun. Together with “the posts of my doors,” the gate image stresses the vital place of wisdom in daily life and thought. A scriptural expert writes, “ ‘Wisdom’ is the biblical term for . . . on-earth-as-it-is-in-heaven everyday living.” He adds: “. . . the way we think of and respond to God is the most practical thing we do. In matters of everyday practicality, nothing, absolutely nothing, takes precedence over God.”

2 | I Corinthians 2:9, 10

As it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God.

Translation

. . . as it is written in the Scriptures:

“No one has ever seen this.

No one has ever heard about it.

No one has ever imagined

what God has prepared for those who love him.”

But God has shown us these things through the Spirit.

The Spirit knows all things, even the deep secrets of God.

—International Children’s Bible

3 | Galatians 5:5

For we through the Spirit wait for the hope of righteousness by faith.

Translation

For we [not relying on the Law but] through the [strength and power of the Holy] Spirit, by faith, are waiting [confidently] for the hope of righteousness [the completion of our salvation].

—Amplified® Bible

from Section 2

5 | II Timothy 2:22

Follow righteousness, faith, charity, peace, with them that call on the Lord out of a pure heart.

Translation

... pursue righteous living, faithfulness, love, and peace. Enjoy the companionship of those who call on the Lord with pure hearts.

—New Living Translation

6 | Genesis 12:1, 2

Now the Lord had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee: and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing.

God's mandate to Abram to leave country, family, and home represents a sweeping demand for allegiance to Him. Abram's polytheistic upbringing would have taught him reliance on pagan gods for these basic needs. In light of this background, the patriarch's obedience to a call from an unknown deity—and his unquestioning trust in God's promises—have made him known as the “father of the faithful.”

Commenting on the significance of Abram's story, one source explains: "Opening with God's call to Abraham in Haran, . . . the action then shifts all over the map of the Fertile Crescent, ending with Abraham's great-grandchildren—Joseph and his eleven brothers, eponymous founders of the Twelve Tribes of Israel—settled in Egypt. The journeys of Abraham and his progeny, in fact, outline the geographical contours of the biblical world, from the valley of the Euphrates to that of the Nile. . . ."

7 | Genesis 13:1, 6–9, 11

Abram went up out of Egypt, he, and his wife, and all that he had, and Lot with him, into the south. . . . And the land was not able to bear them, that they might dwell together: for their substance was great, so that they could not dwell together. And there was a strife between the herdmen of Abram's cattle and the herdmen of Lot's cattle: . . . And Abram said unto Lot, Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen; for we be brethren. Is not the whole land before thee? separate thyself, I pray thee, from me: if thou wilt take the left hand, then I will go to the right; or if thou depart to the right hand, then I will go to the left. . . . Then Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan; and Lot journeyed east: and they separated themselves the one from the other.

Nomadic people regularly searched out pastures for their flocks. In this case, the increase of their herds impels Abram and Lot to seek separate grazing areas. Though the elder of the two, Abram peaceably offers Lot first choice of the land—a gesture that appears to leave him at a disadvantage, since Lot selects the fertile Jordan River valley.

Lot's decision turns out to be disastrous. His proximity to the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah brings about his captivity and the loss of his goods. Abram rescues Lot and his family (see 14:8–16), but their separation continues. Scholars note that Lot's descendants (Moabites and Ammonites; see 19:37, 38) stay at odds with the Israelites over the subsequent centuries (see Deuteronomy 23:3, 4; Ezra 9:1, 2).

7 | Genesis 13:14, 15, 17

The Lord said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward: for all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever. . . . Arise, walk through the land in the length of it and in the breadth of it; for I will give it unto thee.

God here reiterates His pledge to bless Abram (see 12:2, citation 6), adding the promise of extensive land. Bible authorities point out parallels between Abram's journey and Jacob's travel to Beth-el, where a similar divine assurance is given (see 28:10–14).

To walk through a territory symbolized taking possession of it. Abram signals possession of his God-given land—and the end of his itinerant existence—by taking down his tent and erecting an altar to God (see 13:18).

Abram's new land, west of the Jordan River, is Canaan. Thought to be named after Noah's grandson (see 10:18), it remains the home of Abram's descendants until their move to Egypt at the time of Joseph (see chap. 46). Later called Palestine, Canaan will not be theirs again until after the Exodus (see Joshua, chap. 3; 21:43–45).

from Section 3

8 | Proverbs 3:9

Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the firstfruits of all thine increase.

Translation

Honor the LORD with your wealth and with the best part of everything you produce.

—New Living Translation

Jews kept this charge in several ways—through tithing, contributing funds to support the Temple, and sacrificing the first and best yields of their crops (see Leviticus 23:10; 27:30–32; Deuteronomy 14:22–29). A commentary remarks: “Our use of world and wealth reveals our true commitments. Specifically, by it we show either honor or scorn to God. . . .”

9 | Genesis 17:1, 2, 5–7, 15, 16

When Abram was ninety years old and nine, the Lord appeared to Abram, and said unto him, I am the Almighty God; walk before me, and be thou perfect. And I will make my covenant between me and thee, and will multiply thee exceedingly. . . . Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram, but thy name shall be Abraham; for a father of many nations have I made thee. And I will make thee exceeding fruitful, and I will make nations of thee, and kings shall come out of thee. And I will establish my covenant between me and thee and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee. . . . And God said unto Abraham, As for Sarai thy wife, thou shalt not call her name Sarai, but Sarah shall her name be. And I will bless her, and give thee a son also of her: yea, I will bless her, and she shall be a mother of nations; kings of people shall be of her.

In this passage God again proclaims His covenant promise to Abram. Then He makes an unprecedented announcement—that Abram’s name is to be changed and that he is to be the ancestor of kings and nations.

The difference between the names Abram and Abraham is slight, the first believed to mean “exalted father” and the second, “father of a multitude.” At this time, Abram’s role as a human father is limited to his son Ishmael by his wife’s maid Hagar. Yet God reconfirms his position as father of many (to be realized through Ishmael and Isaac) with the more expansive name of Abraham. And although “Sarai” and “Sarah” both mean princess, Sarai’s new name is seen to signify a greater purpose or destiny as “mother of nations.”

God’s assurance about “thy seed” is cherished by countless generations of Hebrews—as well as by Christians and Muslims, who also consider Abraham the father of their faiths. In the book of Acts, it is cited by Peter as evidence of Christ Jesus’ fulfillment of prophecy (see 3:25, 26).

10 | Galatians 3:6, 7

Even as Abraham believed God, and it was accounted to him for righteousness. Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham.

Translation

Abraham serves as an example. He believed God, and that faith was regarded as the basis of Abraham's approval by God. You must understand that people who have faith are Abraham's descendants.

—GOD'S WORD Translation

The Hebrew people identified themselves as descendants of Abraham, and Jewish Christians continued acknowledging this connection (see examples in Matthew 1:1; Luke 13:16; 19:9). With the advent of Christ Jesus, however, “children of Abraham” was applied to all followers of his teachings, including Gentiles (see also Galatians 3:13, 14, 28, 29).

Some early adherents—in particular, a group known as Judaizers—insisted that believers strictly abide by Jewish ritual and refused to accept those who did not agree with them. Paul soundly rejects this exclusivity, elsewhere making the point that Abraham was chosen by God before he was circumcised (see Romans 4:8–10).

from Section 4

11 | Genesis 17:17, 19

Then Abraham fell upon his face, and laughed, and said in his heart, Shall a child be born unto him that is an hundred years old? and shall Sarah, that is ninety years old, bear? . . . And God said, Sarah thy wife shall bear thee a son indeed; and thou shalt call his name Isaac: and I will establish my covenant with him for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him.

At this period, childlessness was attributed solely to women and was deemed one of the greatest misfortunes a family could face. But God's power brings healings of barrenness to other women besides Sarah: Rebekah, Rachel, Samson's mother, Hannah, the Shunammite woman, and Elisabeth (see Genesis 25:21; 30:22; Judges 13:3, 24; I Samuel 1:20; 2:21; II Kings 4:8–17; Luke 1:7, 13, 57).

Abraham's and Sarah's laughter (see also Genesis 18:12) upon hearing that they are to become parents at their advanced ages leads to naming their son Isaac (Hebrew, yishāq, meaning “he laughs”). The two learn to believe God's Word, though, and centuries later both are mentioned in the New Testament catalog of the faithful (see Hebrews 11:8–11).

from Section 5

13 | Acts 3:13

The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus.

Here, following the healing of the lame man at the Temple gate, Peter is expounding on Jesus' unparalleled role in the salvation of humanity. He begins by establishing a clear link to the Hebrew patriarchs, declaring that the same God they worshiped has honored Jesus as His Son—"the Holy One and the Just" and "the Prince of life" (vv. 14, 15). Then, quoting Deuteronomy 18:15, he names Christ Jesus as the prophet predicted by Moses (see v. 22).

Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are repeatedly referred to in describing the God of Israel in Hebrew Scripture (see examples in Exodus 3:6; Deuteronomy 1:8; II Kings 13:23). Representing distinct generations, all three receive God's guarantee of land and many children. Together they illustrate the continuity of His goodness.

from Section 6

16 | Galatians 3:9

So then they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham.

Following up on his earlier reasoning (see vv. 6, 7, citation 10), Paul reemphasizes Gentiles' inclusion in God's promises to Abraham and his progeny (see vv. 14, 16). It is faith in God, not ancestry or ceremonial practices, that identifies and blesses His children.

17 | Ephesians 2:8, 10

By grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: . . . For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.

Translation

You are saved by God's grace because of your faith. This salvation is God's gift. . . . we are God's accomplishment, created in Christ Jesus to do good things. God planned for these good things to be the way that we live our lives.

—Common English Bible

18 | John 8:56, 58

Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day: and he saw it, and was glad. . . . Verily, verily, I say unto you, Before Abraham was, I am.

In these verses Jesus is answering a group of Pharisees who have accused him of making himself greater than their revered ancestor, Abraham (see vv. 51–53). His opponents have confirmed their status as offspring of Abraham (see vv. 33, 39); now the Master reveals a higher relationship in Abraham's witness to Jesus' Messiahship. Notably, Jesus calls the patriarch “your father” rather than “my father”—an unmistakable contrast to his reference to God as “my Father” (see v. 54).

“My day” is viewed as encompassing the Savior’s entire life and ministry. Rabbinic teaching held that Abraham had been given foreknowledge of the Messiah, as a scholar observes: “No rabbi would object to Jesus’ claim that Abraham would see the messianic era. But Jesus does not say this. Instead, he says: ‘Your father Abraham rejoiced at the thought of seeing my day; he saw it and was glad’ (italics added). The messianic era is now fulfilled in Christ.”

This source further reflects: “To exist before the birth of Abraham—and yet to stand here today—is the boldest claim Jesus has yet made. It recalls the affirmation of the prologue that the Word existed even at the beginning of time. His existence has been continuous since his life is completely drawn from God’s eternal life.”

19 | Hebrews 12:1, 2

Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith.

Translation

So we have many people of faith around us. Their lives tell us what faith means. So let us run the race that is before us and never give up. We should remove from our lives anything that would get in the way. And we should remove the sin that so easily catches us. Let us look only to Jesus. He is the one who began our faith, and he makes our faith perfect.

—International Children’s Bible

Read a related article, “A partnership with God” by Elaine Follis, at jsh.christianscience.com/a-partnership-with-god.

Resources quoted in this issue

GT: Barclay, William. The Daily Study Bible: The Letter to the Hebrews. Edinburgh: Saint Andrew, 1955. Revised and updated by Saint Andrew, 2001. Reprinted as The New Daily Study Bible: The Letter to the Hebrews. Louisville, KY: Westminster John Knox, 2001–04; The New Testament in Modern English by J.B. Phillips copyright © 1960, 1972 J.B. Phillips. Administered by The Archbishops’ Council of the Church of England. Used by permission.

Cit. 1: Peterson, Eugene H. The Message, Remix: The Bible in Contemporary Language. Colorado Springs, CO: NavPress Pub. Group, 2003.

Cit. 6: Harris, Stephen L., and Robert L. Platzner. The Old Testament: An Introduction to the Hebrew Bible. 2nd ed. New York: McGraw-Hill Education, 2007.

Cit. 8: Keck, Leander E., et al., eds. The New Interpreter's Bible Commentary. Vol. 3, Introduction to Hebrew Poetry, Job, Psalms, Introduction to Wisdom Literature, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Song of Songs. Nashville: Abingdon, 2015.

Cit. 18: Wilkins, Michael J. Matthew: NIV Application Commentary: From Biblical Text . . . to Contemporary Life. Grand Rapids, MI: Zondervan, 2004.

COPYRIGHT

Scriptural quotations marked Contemporary English Version are taken from the Contemporary English Version, copyright © 1991, 1992, 1995 by American Bible Society. Used by permission.

Scriptural quotations marked International Children's Bible are taken from the International Children's Bible®. Copyright © 1986, 1988, 1999 by Thomas Nelson. Used by permission. All rights reserved.

Scriptural quotations marked Amplified® Bible are taken from the Amplified® Bible, copyright © 2015 by The Lockman Foundation. Used by permission. www.Lockman.org.

Scriptural quotations marked New Living Translation are taken from the Holy Bible, New Living Translation, copyright © 1996, 2004, 2015 by Tyndale House Foundation. Used by permission of Tyndale House Publishers, Inc., Carol Stream, Illinois 60188. All rights reserved.

Scriptural quotations marked GOD'S WORD Translation are taken from GOD'S WORD®. © 1995, 2003, 2013, 2014, 2019, 2020 by God's Word to the Nations Mission Society. Used by permission.

Scriptural quotations marked Common English Bible are taken from the Common English Bible, copyright © 2011 by Common English Bible.

© 2022 The Christian Science Publishing Society. The design of the Cross and Crown is a trademark owned by the Christian Science Board of Directors and is used by permission. Bible Lens and Christian Science Quarterly are trademarks owned by The Christian Science Publishing Society. Unless otherwise indicated, all scriptural quotations are taken from the King James Version of the Holy Bible.